From the Paris Gazette, dated Jan. 19.

Warsaw, December 15.

Monsieur Cranenbourg, the Envoy of the States General, sent a Letter some days ago, by an Express, to Count Piper the King of Sweden's chief Minister, desiring him to endeavour to incline his Swedish Majesty to treat of Peace; but he return'd him his Letter again without opening it. Mr. Robinson, the Envoy of England, who has attended the King of Sweden for some time, finding all the Instances he could make to him to persuade him to an Accommodation with the King of Poland, were fruitless, is return'd hither. His Swedish Majesty will hear of no other Mediators but such as the Republick shall depute. The great General of the Crown and the other Senators who oppose the sending an Ambassador to the Czar of Muscovy, represented to the King of Poland, that they could not approve of an Embassy, to which the Republick, who must sustain the Charge of it, had not given her Consent: That the 50000 Crowns it would cost, might be better employ'd; And that, if there was any Necessity for it, it might be more Advantageous to negotiate a Treaty with the Czar's Envoy in Poland, where the Advice of the Senators might always be had, than to leave it to the Management of a single Person in Muscovy.

From the Hague Gazette, dated Jan. 21.

Lemberg, Dec. 20. The Palatine of Culm is getting his Equipage ready for his Embassy to Muscovy, notwithstanding the Opposition most of the Senators make against it; and return'd Answer to a Letter written to him by those Senators, 'That he had undertaken that Embassy, not only with the Consent of the Council, but by virtue of a Commission given him by the same Council. That he could not comprehend for what Reason the Cardinal Primate should be against it now, seeing he had subscrib'd the said Commission. That he did not think himself concern'd to examine whether that Commission was legal and would bear him out or not; but that he was determin'd to execute it and perform his Embassy, because he had not receiv'd any Order to the contrary duely sign'd by the Estates in Council, and by his Polish Majesty.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Jan. 29.

Lemberg, Jan. 2. The Palatine of Culm will set out from hence the 6th of this Month on his Embassy to Muscovy, he carries with him 600 Troopers well mounted for a Present to his Czarish Majesty from the King his Master. The Generals of the Army have sent the Castellain of Culm to the Ambassador of Muscovy, to desire him to write to his Master to give no Audience nor Credit to the Palatine of Culm, because the Republick does not consent to that Embassy. But that Minister has answer'd them, 'That it did not become him to take upon him to instruct his Master what to do in this Affair; but that he could not but wonder that the Poles, who us'd to boast so much of Liberty, should so cheaply submit to the Swedes; and that his Master would never forsake the King of Poland.

Warsaw, Jan. 11. 'Tis confirm'd that the Marshal of the Confederated Nobility of Great Poland has issued Universalia, or circular Letters to all the Palatinats, to assemble the 14th of this Month; but there are yet but few Persons come hither except the Cardinal Primate who arriv'd last Night. The Resident Wachslager nor having sufficient Instructions for assisting at this Congress, the King of Sweden has been desir'd to name another Person and to give him a larger Commission; whereupon 'tis said Monsieur Alderstein, Commissary of War, will be chosen by his Swedish Majesty. They write from Cracow, that the Senators who are against the Embassy to Muscovy, have sent Deputies thither to the Muscovite Ambassador, to represent to him, that the said Embassy cannot be of the least Advantage either to the Czar of Muscovy or the King of Poland, because the Republick has not given her Consent to it; which gives occasion to various Reasonings, but it is generally agreed the Czar will adhere firmly to his Polish Majesty, and assist him effectually.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Feb. 1.

Hamburg, Jan. 25. They write from Poland, that General Reenschild has possess'd himself of the Castle of Siradia, and has held a Council of War there: The Resolutions of that Council are not known, but some are of Opinion the Swedes will likewise attack the Cloyster of Czenstkowa, in which they would find a rich Booty, and might incommode the Saxon Troops that are about Cracow. We have no Advice yet that the Confederates have open'd the intended Congress at Warsaw, nor whether the King of Sweden has sent another Deputy thither in the room of the Resident Wachslager, as was desir'd of him. Mean time we are assur'd the two Generals of the Army of the Crown are ill affected to the King of Poland, and that they have sent Orders to all their Officers to repair to their respective Regiments.

Falmouth, Jan. 29. This day arriv'd the Alliance Pacquet-Boat in 13 days with a Mail from Lisbon, who brings an Account that he was most joyfully receiv'd there, on the News he brought of the King of Spain's arrival in England, and being ready to Sail with the first fair Wind. He was chased in his going out near Ushant by 4 French Men of War.

Dartmouth, Jan. 29. Here is come into this Port a Flushing Privateer of 20 Guns with a Prize of Fredrickstadt from Morlaix, laden with Sugar and Honey.

Harwich, Feb. 1. On Saturday the Dispatch Pacquet-Boat sail'd out of this Port with a Mail for Holland; and this Morning sail'd out of this Port two Merchant Ships, one for Leghorne the other for Venice.

Dantz, Feb. 1. The outward-bound are all preparing to Sail Westward; and last Night came in a Ship from Leghorne, who yesterday about 11 in the Morning took off of Dungeness a French Boat of about 8 Tonn, with 1 English-man, 1 Scot, and 4 Frenchmen in her from Diep.

Dantz, Feb. 1. Last Night came in the Mediterranean Galley, Captain Baker Commander, from Leghorne, Leghorne, who off the Nels took a Boat with four French-men in her, an English-man and a Scotch-man; the French-men will be sent to Dover Gaol, and the Scotch-man and English-man are sent to Prison here by our Mayor, till he receives Orders from Court. The English-man's Name is Paul Godwin late Master of the Truro Merchantship, the Scotch-man's Name is George Buchan, who had several Papers about him, which are sent up to the Secretary's Office.
